

HEAR FROM OUR TEACHER – Tom Jenney

Under the leadership of Jacek Spendel and his talented team, Project Arizona brings some of the most promising young freedom fighters in the world to spend a few weeks in Arizona. They get to immerse themselves in our culture of freedom and learn skills and life lessons from some of the best practitioners in America's liberty movement. I had the privilege this year to meet with the PA students every Wednesday morning for five weeks at the McClelland Irish Library and help them brainstorm about how to build their own freedom pipelines in their home countries.

In the past four decades, Arizona has seen the development of a broad group of pro-liberty organizations I call the “pipeline.” We have university centers, policy think tanks, grassroots organizations, legislative lobbying shops, public-interest law firms, politicians, and independent rabblers fighting on behalf of free market policies, property rights, self-defense rights, school choice, and other freedom causes. As part of Project Arizona, students from around the globe can gain insight and hands-on experience from Arizona's dedicated and successful freedom fighters.
